NEWCASTLE

UG4 Rural 24km NW Northam.
Severe flooding of the Avon River at Toodyay in the winters of 1857 and 1859 encouraged a move to higher ground some 3.5km upriver near the Convict Depot. A new townsite, Newcastle, was proclaimed on 1 October 1860. (Government Gazette, 9-10-60, 3). Henry John Grundy was appointed PM of Newcastle on 28 May 1861 and the GPO announced that unless letters for the new office were superscribed per Newcastle Mail they would go to Toodyay. (Government Gazette, 28-05-61, 94). The PM at Toodyay, John Acton Wroth was paid to 31 July 1862. The office closed formally on 6 October 1864 and its postal equipment, including the 15-14 obliterator, was transferred to Newcastle. To avoid confusion with Newcastle in New South Wales the name was changed to Toodyay in 1910. (Government Gazette, 6-05-10, 1043).

PO 23-04-47. P&TO 11-01-72.

When the office of Northam & Toodyay was replaced by separate offices at Northam and Toodyay in 1847, some, at least, of its postmarking equipment went to Toodyay. What happened at Northam Post Office between 1847 and the issue of new postmarking equipment in 1854 is not clear. There are however, several letters in the State Archives of Western Australia that were written at Northam during the relevant period and which were presumably despatched from that office. They were all processed through Guildford Post Office. Guildford was the terminus of the Avon Valley mail run at the time and it appears that outwards mail from Northam between 1847 and 1854 was collected by the mail contractor and postmarked when he arrived back at Guildford. If dedicated postmarking equipment was supplied to Northam it should have included at least the standard set of three.

NORTH DISTRICT
(a) at Camden Harbour, 1865.
(b) at Roebourne, 1865-1872.

JH4 The post office was initially at Camden Harbour 240km NE Derby and later at Roebourne. Camden Harbour was the location of an ill-fated attempt at a pastoral settlement in the far North West. (See Black Swan, 6, 3, 34 for precise location). Robert Sholl was appointed Resident Magistrate of North District and his son, Treverton, was appointed Postmaster. (Government Gazette, 17-01-65). The settling party left Fremantle on 26 January and arrived at Camden Harbour some three weeks later on 18 February 1865. Conditions were extremely unfavourable and the settlement was abandoned little more than eight months later on 29 October. The party embarked on the KESTREL and arrived at Tien Tsin Bay on 24 November 1865. The Sholls established their administrative base near Mount Welcome on the Harding River about 11km from Port

Walcott. This site was gazetted as Roebourne in August 1866. Postal duties initially were carried out in the Magistrates office but not necessarily by Treverton Sholl who was often away exploring. Treverton left Roebourne on 3 March 1867 on board the EMMA which was lost without trace soon afterwards. Mr G.B.Fauntleroy probably took over postal duties at this time, operating at McRae's Store in Roebourne. It became, however, an inconvenient location and a petition of local residents caused the post office to be removed to Cossack from 25 October 1872.
PO 18-02-65 at Camden Harbour. Moved to Roebourne 29-10-65. Moved to Cossack 25-10-72.

TL1 Gold mining 29km WNW Broad Arrow near the Government Dam. (L&S Map 71/80 VM). The history of this site is obscure. A Recreation Reserve was gazetted in 1909 and a School Reserve in 1910. (Government Gazette, 3-09-09, 2896 and 6-05-10, 1044). However, a new town site to be known as Ora Banda was gazetted on 10 May 1912 and amended in 1913. (Government Gazette, 9-08-12, 3809 and 27-06-13, 2120). This site seems to have been the gold mining location known as Gimlet some 3km ESE along the Broad Arrow Road. The first Ora Banda PO was closed and Gimlet PO renamed Ora Banda apparently by 2-04-13. See Gimlet and Ora Banda (b).
